Stamina Bar

- What states can it be in? All of them.
  - FIlled from 0% to 100%
- How does content get in, and out?
  - Signals from player scene trigger when stamina is changed
- How does it work with no mouse?
  - Just displays information, doesn't require interaction
- What confirms an action happened, or failed?
  - Firing thrusters visually shows the bar emptying
- What happens at zero, at maximum, at longest string?
  - In code is clamped between 0 and 100, cannot exceed these values
- Does it survive a save and load?
  - No save or load in game
- How does a new player learn it exists?
  - Always exists on the right side of the screen

Pause Menu

- What states can it be in? All of them.
  - Invisible
  - Visible
    - Each button can be: Hovered, Pressed, Focused
- How does content get in, and out?
  - No content to get in or out
- How does it work with no mouse?
  - Can be cycled using TAB key, button selection confirmed with ENTER key
- What confirms an action happened, or failed?
  - Start/Continue
    - Menu closes, game starts playing
  - Settings
    - Opens settings panel
  - Quit
    - Closes game
- What happens at zero, at maximum, at longest string?
  - Doesn't take any input except pressing buttons
- Does it survive a save and load?
  - No save or load in game
- How does a new player learn it exists?

- Game starts with menu opened

Settings Panel

- What states can it be in? All of them.
  - Each volume slider can be filled from 0% to 100%
- How does content get in, and out?
  - Signals sent out by the sliders communicate the audio volume
- How does it work with no mouse?
  - Chosen slider is cycled by TAB, arrows are used to move the sliders
- What confirms an action happened, or failed?
  - As soon as the sounds is played, the difference in volume can be heard
- What happens at zero, at maximum, at longest string?
  - Sliders are clamped, so they cannot exceed the predefined borders
- Does it survive a save and load?
  - No save or load in game
- How does a new player learn it exists?
  - Settings button is visible in the menu